Are You Ready for Breaking News?

Wisconsin Emergency Management and ReadyWisconsin deliver important information through social media

(MADISON) – Wisconsin Emergency Management and its ReadyWisconsin emergency preparedness program encourage everyone to join us on Facebook, follow us on Twitter, read our blog and join our e-mail list to learn about disaster preparedness and current information about disasters and emergencies. Information provided includes:

- Breaking news alerts on emergencies and disasters as they happen. We send you situation reports and other important information from the State Emergency Operations Center.
- Severe weather alerts: Though our ReadyWarn system, we send Severe Thunderstorm Warnings as well as Tornado Watches and Warnings for the entire state of Wisconsin to your Facebook and Twitter account. These alerts can save your life and are especially helpful if you access Facebook and Twitter on a mobile device.
- Emergency preparedness information: We are providing emergency preparedness tips and information for a variety of natural disasters and man-made events. Learn what to do and where to go to keep your family safe.
- Press releases: Keep up to date on emergency management programs and initiatives.
- Blog postings from Wisconsin Emergency Management: We just launched a new blog with behind the scenes insights from Wisconsin Emergency Management staff.
